At Cushing, a station line 85 miles long from El Dorado, Kan., will connect with the main line.

The route then follows to Carrollton, Mo., with a branch line about twenty miles longer into Kansas City, to supply the refinery to be built at that place.

This branch line will be a 36-inch line. The trunk line follows the Santa Fe railroad from Carrollton to Fort Madison, where it will form a line suitable to be erected there. From Fort Madison, where the crossing of the Mississippi river is made, a six inch line will run to Streeter, Ill., where a third big refinery will be located on the deep water canal close to Chicago.

Altogether there will be 150 miles of pipe line exclusive of the branch line, with 100,000 and 150 miles of eight-inch. The total cost will be about $30,000,000.

Plans for the financing of the line provide for the sale of $4,000,000 of convertible bonds already issued, and the sale of two million shares of treasury stock of the market which now is about $10 a share. This will provide about $10,000,000.

The several refineries which the line will cross will add 2,000 barrels a day of refining capacity to the 20,000 barrels per day already possessed by the Sinclair company. The plant to be built at Kansas City will be a 1,000 barrel day, the one at Fort Madison 1,000 barrels and the one at Streeter 1,000 barrels.

The various refineries which the line will cross will add 2,000 barrels a day of refining capacity to the 20,000 barrels per day already possessed by the Sinclair company. The plant to be built at Kansas City will be a 1,000 barrel day, the one at Fort Madison 1,000 barrels and the one at Streeter 1,000 barrels.

The major portion of the line will be laid down on top of the sand at 1,610 feet.
